

Help Your Community Live!

Fentanyl is a Schedule II controlled substance about 100 times more potent than morphine. 42% of the pills tested for fentanyl contained at least 2 mg (3 grains of salt), a potentially lethal dose. Even in small doses, it can be deadly.

Fentanyl and other synthetic opioids are the most common drugs involved in overdose deaths. Over 150 people die every day. Drugs may contain deadly levels of fentanyl, and you wouldn't be able to see it, taste it, or smell it.

Narcan and Naloxone are life-saving medications that can reverse an overdose from opioids—including heroin, fentanyl, and prescription opioid medications—when given immediately. Having this life saving medication available in community locations can help save time in the event of an overdose.

Consider Kloxxado

- Can be administered to adults or pediatric patients
- 8 mg of naloxone versus the 4 mg naloxone nasal spray
- With Kloxxado you're getting twice as much naloxone per box. This is important because 34% of opioid overdose reversals involved at least 2 doses of naloxone.

Accidental Overdose Happens to Anyone

- A child when they borrow a headache medication from a friend or classmate.
- A grandparent when they forget how much medication they have taken.
- A spouse when looking for something to ease their daily stresses.

Be Prepared

Anywhere you go in a day - an overdose can occur. Make sure the places and people you love have Narcan (naloxone) on hand. The following organizations should carry Narcan. Consider donating Narcan to them.
